

The Sheet Metal ductwork installer apprentice supports the installation, fabrication and assembly of HVAC duct systems in commercial, and industrial buildings. This entry level role is designed for individuals beginning their career in the sheet metal trade, offering hands-on training under the supervision of experienced installers. The apprentice assists with layout, measurement, cutting, fastening and installation of ductwork while learning trade skills , safety practices, and industry standards.